

NON-PROFIT HEADQUARTERS

Industry: Non-Profit
Location: Oakland California

Challenge:

CompassPoint had generally inherited furniture or picked up product as needed from the big box stores or catalogs.

With real estate costs rising, CompassPoint made the decision to consolidate their facilities, and move to a new Class-A office, central to public transit. The move provided a great opportunity to design the office for their specific requirements: collaborative and open workstations, a large multi-use training area, and multiple break out rooms for small meetings.

Solution:

Utilizing Allsteel's DNA system, CSG created an open plan that incorporated meeting areas directly into the workstations, to allow for increased collaboration.

The Merge table line was utilized to provide both small break out tables and larger conference tables, and the flexible Seek seating line was used for training and meeting rooms.

Sensitive to the tight budgets of a non-profit, CSG provided an alternate purchasing method, which allowed CompassPoint to purchase directly from the furniture manufacturer at a significantly discounted rate.

"The staff at CSG was very responsive and worked with us to design the space and identify the items that would best meet our needs. The installation of the furniture went great, and we were able to complete the project on time and on budget. Our staff loves our new space and we could not be happier!"

CSG works with local government, non-profits, and post-secondary educational institutions.

Our team is experienced in creating well designed, professional office environments, within the constraints of a tight budget.

Our key vendors hold GSA, CMAS, or alternate public sector ("piggy-back") contracts, that allow local governmental agencies, 501(c)3 organizations and public and private educational institutions to purchase furniture at significant discounts, often fulfilling the federal or local requirement of "fair and open competition".
